AVERAGE SESTECTS OF INTEREST THE VARIABLES.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS OF DIFFLET AND AUMERICATION AND CONTROL OF DIFFLET AND AUMERICATION, Intersperied with a multitude of Appropriate Engravings, including Portraits of celebrated Winning Horse, Philosophical and Natural Phenomena, Legrammena, dec.

This popular journal, although but a few months the pussed since it was commenced, has already obtained an extensive and profitable subscription list, which is daily increasing, and affords unple encouragement to the publishers to persevere in their efforts to render it useful, amusing, and instructive.

LF On the commencement of the approaching year, the VADE MECUM will undergo a veral important improvements—instead of four pages, it will be increased to Eight of nearly-the present size, and consequently will contain almost 'coulie the quantity-of reading matter which is now given—Making it end of the Largest and Neatest Quarto's free published in the United States. It will be printed on new type, and fine white paper, and the Embedjahments will be considerably multiplied, and of a superior order. Persons desirous of procuring theywork at the beginning of the new volume, will pleasesend their orders at once—asthey may fail to be supplied, as but few copies, will be published more than are actually subscribed for at the lime.

The subjects which are particularly embraced in the friends much foreign information through the medium of his columns, not derivable from the journals, it is still certain that intelligence of a lotal nature, interesting to all, and important to many, and otherwise tinal-birable, will by this means be communicated. It will also offer to those whose means are insequate to the expense of the larger journals, at least a synoptical view of all the important information they contain; and he trusts that those of literary taste may some. more than are actually subscribed for at the time.

The subjects which are particularly embraced in the Vade Mecum, will be more distinctly understood from the following brief analysis of them:

THE DRAMA forms a material portion of the Gentleman's Vade Mecum—every week an entire Play or Farce is given. They are selected with a single eye to their ments alone as preference, however, will be extended in all cases to native productions, when they can be obtained. Independent criticisms, carefully excluding all invidious comparisons, and recommensed by their brevity, are occasionally inserted; as also, Biographical Sketches, Ancedotes, and Bon Mots of prominent Comedians of the present and past ages, of which a rare and inexhaustible compilation, is in store. The publisher, by the liberality of the managers of the two Philadelphia Theatres, and several other gentlemen connected with the stage, has obtained a very excellent and numerous selection of Plays and Farces, for the Vade Mecum; many of them have never appeared in print.

TREATMENT OF MILCH COWS.

There is, perhaps, no part of the husbandry of our country so much neglected as that which relates to the providing of provender for the milch cows on our farms. On many estates, even those of magnitude, the chief part of the feed, if not the entire, which they get are the blades, the tops, and the husks of the corn, with an occasional gratuity of nubbins by way of a holiday feast. The consequence is, that if the winter be severe and protracted, there is nine chances out of ten, that every cow, long before spring arrives, is either dry, or so near it, that the milk she will give is not worth the trouble and cost of stripping, so that many farmers with half a dozen or more cows have neither milk nor butter sufficient for the domestic use of their tables, during the latter part of each winter; and by the time the cold and bleak winds of March arrive, many of the cows are on the lift How is it possible that it can be otherwise There is little or no succulence in the tood we have described in its dry state, and consequent ly, cows fed upon it, must, for the want of mater convertible into milk, cense to yield it .- In every other country, save our own, it forms a part of the business of every farmer or planter, to provide full supplies of nutritious food for his stock of every kind, and for those which comprise his dairy cows, especial pains and care are taken to provide a sufficient quantity of such roots as are heartening and succulent, so that, by thus providing a substitute for the grasses of the pastures, or the soiling stalls or yards, his dairy, even through the dreary and inclement period of the winter, may continue largely to his fortune. We frequently hear gentlemen complaining of the difficulty of procuring such cows as will make probable returns, and of the impossibility of keeping them to their milk during winter. The reason is obvious. No cow, and we ter. The reason is obvious. No cow, and we care not what her breed may be, whether she be of the improved Durham Short horn, the Decon, the Alberney, the common cow of the country, or any other kind—we say no cow can be kept to the milking pail unless you give her semething which will both nourish her system and replenish her udder. To make a cow yield liberal supply of milk through the winter, she should have, in addition to full supplies of good, wholesome hay or fodder, at least half a bushel of roots of some kind or an equivalent of call-render it absolutely necessary, in order to main-tain an erect position, to seek the 'aid' of some convenient feace corner. The ambition of pro-curing fine breeds of animals of all kinds, is one worthy of every praise; but that of taking good worthy of every praise; but that of taking good care of what we have, is equally, if not more laudable. Besides these considerations, the interest of every farmer is always promoted by feedling his cows well. If fed in the niggard manner we have described, their keeping, such as it is, is a dead loss to their owners, they make no manure worth speaking about, and the animals themselves are comparatively valueless; and if kept generously through the winter, and sheltered from the weather, each con will give her two gallons of milk per day, and make from four to seven pounds of butter per week, which latter should be set down as the profit, as the milk and cream consumed by the family, will more than compensate for the feed.—In addition to this, animals thus fed make three times the quantity of manure, and are always in a condition to command good prices. have indulged in no speculative theories in what we have said, but have addressed ourselves to the common sense of the Agricultural community, in the hope that they will see the propriety of adopting some plan by which our object can be attained.—Farmer and Gardener.

From the Boston Mercantile Journal. LOOK WELL TO YOUR FIRES.

The following excellent rules were circulated in this city a quarter of a century since, in the form of a printed handbill-and put into the public rooms as a constant monitor to guard a. gainst the danger of Fire. It may do some good, but can do no harm to republish it at this

1. Remember that a fire is a good servant, but a bad master: it cannot take care of itself; and your personal interest, as well as your duty to the public, requires that you take care of

2. When you are about to leave your fire at stated times, make your calculations before hand, to have no more fire than you can dispose of with safety.

3. Never leave one stick of wood upon ans other, partly burnt.

4. Never leave a stick partly burnt standing in the corner. 5. Examine your brush after sweeping a hearth, especially at night.

6. Never suffer hot ashes to stand in a wooden vessel.

7. Never leave papers or linen near your fire. 8. Never read in bed by candle light.

9. After all precautions, remember that an inhabited building is liable to destruction by fire. Be prepared for an emergency: Keep your water bucket filled. When a fire has begun suffer it not to be increased by a needless current of air from doors and windows.

10. Should the fire have made such progress as to prevent your escape by the stair case, and should the distance be too great to leap from a window, endeavor to descend by the help of your bed cord, or by tying your bed clothes together. It would be well to keep a rope in your chamber for this very purpose.

11. If safety does not appear probable in this way, wrap yourself up in a blanket, hold your breath, and rush through the flames. If water be at hand first wet the blanket.

It would be well on the family's retiring to bed, to have all the middle doors of the house closed, that in case of fire in one apartment it may be confined there, and not communicate immediately with other parts of the building.

THE BRITISH OAK.

Among the traditions of this wonderful tree, the following will, we have no doubt, prove interesting to our readers. The large Golenest oak, which was felled in the year 1810, for the use of his Majesty's navy, grew about four miles from the town of Newport, in Monmonth the main trunk, at ten feet long, produced 450 cubic feet, one limb 355, one do. 427, one do. 235, one do. 156, one do. 113, and six other limbs of inferior size averaged 03 feet each, making the whole number, 2426 entire feet of sound and convertible timber. The bark was estimated at 6 tons, but as some of the heavy due notice has been given.
